The plate on the burial casket read as follows: Hon. Philip B. Fouke, died October 3, 1876, aged 58 years.

Belleville Weekly Advocate, October 6, 1876

The papers announce the death of Philip B. Fouke, at Washington, on the 3d inst. Mr. Fouke was a native of Kaskaskia, Ill., and spent most of his life in this city. He was one of the first editors and publishers of the Belleville Advocate in 1840 and subsequent years. From 1859 to 1863 he represented the Belleville district in Congress. He was also State Attorney for the Circuit, then composed of St. Clair, Madison, Monroe, Randolph, Perry, Washington and Clinton counties. He commanded the 31st regiment of Illinois Volunteers at the battle of Belmont, and has resided since the war principally at Washington, D.C. His age was about 65 years. He was a man of more than ordinary ability, and of the most generous impulses. He leaves many friends in Southern Illinois to mourn his loss.

Historical Encyclopedia of Illinois, 1916

Fouke, Philip B., lawyer and Congressman was born at Kaskaskia, Ill., Jan. 23, 1818; was chiefly self-educated and began his career as a clerk afterwards acting as a civil engineer; about 1841-42 was associated with the publication of "The Belleville Advocate," later studied law and, after being admitted to the bar, served as Prosecuting Attorney, being re-elected to that office in 1856. Previous to this, however, he had been elected to the lower branch of the Seventeenth General Assembly (1850), and, in 1858 was elected as a Democrat to the Thirty sixth Congress and re-elected two years later. While still in Congress he assisted in organizing the Thirtieth Regiment Illinois Volunteers, of which he was commissioned Colonel, but resigned on account of ill-health soon after the battle of Shiloh. After leaving the army he removed to New Orleans, where he was appointed Public Administrator and practiced law for some time. He then took up the prosecution of the cotton-claims against the Mexican Government, in which he was engaged some seven years, finally removing to Washington City and making several trips to Europe in the interest of these suits. He won his cases, but died soon after a decision in his favor, largely in consequence of overtaxing his brain in their prosecution. His death occurred in Washington, October 3, 1876, when he was buried in the Congressional Cemetery, President Grant and a number of Senators and Congressmen acting as pall-bearers at his funeral.
