The Evening Star, June 8, 1913, p. 10 Found Dead in the River Body of James H. Herbert, Huckster, Discovered by Fishermen While fishing in the Anacostia river near the foot of 1st street southeast yesterday afternoon, Arthur and William Briscoe of 165 N street southeast found the body of a man floating in the river. The police of the harbor precinct were notified and the body was taken to the District morgue.  Last night the body was identified as that of James H. Herbert, sixty-five years old, who resided at the house of Mrs. Ada Branson, 1306 3d street southeast. Mrs. Branson made the identification It is stated that Herbert was at home Friday night as late as 10 o'clock, but just when he left the house Mrs. Branson did not know.  Herbert, it is stated, was a native of Maryland. He had lived in this city for the past forty-five years and was a huckster. Nine years ago his wife died and his daughter died less than six months ago. Friends say he worried over the death of his daughter. They think he probably was unable to sleep and that while strolling along the river front Friday night he accidentally fell overboard.  Two sisters of the deceased reside in this city and they were notified of his death.

Death of Dr. J.W. Herbert
For Many Years a Practicing Physician in Washington
Dr. James W. Herbert, for many years a practicing physician in this city, died yesterday at his home, 634 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, after an illness of two years.
The funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at his late home. The services will be conducted by Rev. Dr. William L. DeVries, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal Church. Interment will be made in Congressional cemetery. The pallbearers have not been selected.
Dr. Herbert was born in Alexandria, Va., in 1850. He was educated in the public schools of that city and later attended the University of Maryland, from which he graduated in medicine when he was twenty years of age. Three years later he was sent to South America on board the warship Lancaster as chemist and physician, having previously entered the navy as apothecary. After his return he served as surgeon at the United States marine barracks for fourteen years, resigning when his outside practice grew to such proportions that he was unable to continue in the government service.

Little Boy Badly Burned
Child Ignited Clothes While Playing With Matches
While playing with matches at his home 1306 H street northeast yesterday afternoon Leroy Herbert, three years of age, set fire to his clothing and was severely burned about his hands, face and body. The boy's mother was in another part of the house at the time and hearing the boy's screams for help and rushed to him and put out the flames. The boy was taken to the Casualty Hospital and later transferred to the Children's Hospital where his condition is considered pendulous.

Frightfully Burned Little Leroy Herbert Was Treated at Casualty,
Then Wrapped in a Blanket and Sent to Children's Hospital --
Surgeon in Charge Says He Knew Condition Was Critical
"It is the rule of our institution not to care for children patients, beyond the regular emergency treatment," said Dr. Baldwin, head physician at the Casualty Hospital yesterday, in speaking of the case of Leroy Herbert, the three year-old son of Mr. & Mrs. Charles W. Herbert, of 1366 H street northeast, who was taken to the hospital to be treated for severe burns about the face and body Thursday afternoon; and who was later removed to the Children's Hospital, where he died the following day.
Between the time the child was burned at 1366 H street northeast and the time he died at Children's Hospital, Thirteenth and W streets northwest, he had been borne in a patrol wagon, first to the Casualty Hospital, 706 Massachusetts avenue northeast and thence to Children's Hospital, a total distance of more than forty blocks, or about four miles. The temperature that afternoon was about 53 degrees.

May Have Hastened Death

The moving of the child from the hospital, in view of the seriousness of the injury and the coldness of the weather, has caused the parents, relatives, and friends of the little boy, to be much agitated. They contend that the boy should either have been allowed to remain at Casualty Hospital, where he was first taken, or that he should have been taken to the Children's Hospital in the first place and not subject to the cold air and the jolting and inconvenience of moving, which is claimed to have hastened his death.

While his mother was busy in a room on the first floor, Leroy was left in room on the second floor, and in amusing himself, he lighted some matches, with the result that his clothing became ignited. His screams were heard by Mrs. Herbert, who ran to the room, where she found the little fellow lying on the floor, his clothes a mass of flames. She beat out the blaze, and a patrolman of the Ninth precinct, who was called in, sent for the ambulance of the Casualty Hospital, but received word that it was out. He then sent for the patrol wagon from the Ninth precinct and hurried the boy to the hospital in it.

Knew Condition Was Critical

The child was in critical condition, and there was little hope of his recovery. However after he had received treatment and soothing bandages had been applied, he was wrapped in a blanket, replaced in the patrol wagon, and driven to the Children's Hospital, where he was placed on a cot and died en hours later. The matter was referred to Dr. Baldwin at Casualty Hospital yesterday, and he said there are no facilities there for treating children's cases, and that it has always been to custom at his hospital, if necessary, to detain children patients because they are not in a condition to go home, to send them to the Children's Hospital, where, he said, there is every facility to care for them. He said he treated the Herbert boy when the latter was admitted to the hospital, and that he was aware at the time that the child had little chance of living, but, as it had always been the rule not to keep "children cases," he ordered the child sent to the Children's Hospital, despite his knowledge of the serious condition.

The Children's Hospital is not equipped with an emergency or accident room, and for that reason injured children are always conveyed to the nearest hospital which is so equipped.

Herbert, Wellington B.	d. 21 Dec 1915	37 yrs.	R143/181

Tries To Murder Wife
Then Wellington Herbert Attempts to Commit Suicide
Three Ineffectual Shots
Fired at Mrs. Herbert Before Others Could Interfere
Husband Taken To Hospital
Believed He Was Dying and Asked for Priest --
Wound Inflicted Not Serious

Alleging that his wife had refused to live with him, Wellington B. Herbert, twenty eight years old, of 305 H street northeast, fired three shots from a .32 caliber revolver at her last night and then turned the revolver upon himself in an attempt to end his own life. None of the shots intended for Mrs. Herbert took effect, and the bullet which her husband fired at himself penetrated his breast. He is in the Providence Hospital.

The shooting occurred in a basement sitting room at the home of Mrs. Herbert's sister, Mrs. Annie Nothey, 1121 3d street southeast. Herbert walked into a room filled with people, opened fire on his wife and then in their presence, as stated, turned the gun on himself. He is under guard at the Providence Hospital and the station house books record a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon against him. He will be taken to the Police Court and required to answer to the charge as soon as he is released from the hospital.

There has been trouble between Herbert and his wife for some time, but affairs came to a crisis several weeks ago, when Herbert was arrested on a charge of making threats of personal violence against her. Upon being released following that arrest the trouble in the home continued, according to the police, and Mrs. Herbert had her husband again arrested, this time on a charge of non-support. At that time it is declared, she separated from her husband and sought refuge in the home of her sister, Mrs. Nothey. She has resided there since, with her two children, Violet and Thelma.

Calls to See His Wife

Shortly after 9 o'clock Herbert went to the Nothey home at 1121 3d street southeast and asked to be allowed to see his wife. He was invited inside. He said very little, but asked that his wife step to the door to talk with him. She would not go and Herbert went outside and sat down on the porch. He seemed nervous and excited, the witnesses say, but they feared no harm from him.

Soon the party went down into the basement room, and seated themselves, when Herbert again made his appearance at the door. He asked his wife to come back and live with him, but she replied that she was afraid to. Herbert talked a great deal, addressing his wife most of the time, but responding to other members of the family as they spoke in trying to argue with him upon the proposition he had made to Mrs. Herbert.

When Herbert saw that his wife was firm in her intention to stay away from him, he reached into his back pocket and drew a revolver. Before the members of the party in the house realized what he intended to do he took deliberate aim at his wife, firing three shots in quick succession. All the bullets passed near Mrs. Herbert's head, but, as stated, all were wide of the mark. One of the bullets whizzed past Mrs. Annie Nothey and the powder burned the skin of her arm. The injury is not serious, however.

Turns Revolver on Himself

By the time the third shot was fired Clarence Goldsmith, who was near Herbert, rushed to him, grasped his arm and prevented him from firing again at his wife. By a quick move, however, Herbert wrenched his arm away from Goldsmith's grasp long enough to press the barrel against his chest and pull the trigger. The ball entered the flesh nearly over the heart, but struck a rib and glanced off. Herbert fell to the floor and Goldsmith grabbed the revolver.

The police of the fifth precinct were soon notified of the trouble and Lieut. Anderson, with the reserves of the fifth precinct, hurried to the house in the patrol wagon. Herbert was found in a pool of blood on the floor, with a wound over his heart. It was feared by the police that the bullet had pierced his heart, and he was conveyed at once to the Providence Hospital. Upon examination the wound was found to be not serious.

All the persons in the house at the time of the shootings were unnerved by the incident, and Mrs. Herbert suffered greatly from shock.

When first taken to the hospital Herbert believed he was fatally hurt.

"I'm going to die. I'm going to die. Get me a priest," he kept repeating. The priest was taken to him, but he was told that the wound was a superficial one.
