John F Maury Found Dead of Monoxide in His Garage
Rescue Squad's Effort to Revive Realtor Is Futile

John F. Maury, 52, prominent Washington realtor, was found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning this morning in the garage at his home, 37 West Lenox street, Chevy Chase, Md.

Police said the motors of two automobiles in the enclosure had been running and reported that Mr. Maury's body was found on the rear seat of one of the machines.

Members of the Chevy Chase fire rescue squad were called and administered oxygen for 45 minutes in a futile effort to revive Mr. Maury, who was president of the firm of Maury & Mohler.

Carroll V. Jones, Montgomery County policeman, said Mr. Maury's death was discovered when the maid, Viola A. Turner, colored looked out the kitchen window while preparing breakfast and saw smoke curling beneath the garage door.

She went upstairs to call Mr. Maury but when he could not be found she went to the garage, threw open the door and discovered her employer in one of the machines.

Dr. William Sims of 1611 Twenty-first street N.W. and Dr. Karl C. Corley of 105 Grafton street, Chevy Chase, Md., were summoned, and the former issued a certificate of "death due to carbon monoxide poisoning."

Policeman Jones said he was informed by the maid that Mr. Maury arose about 5 o'clock this morning and told his wife, Mrs. Edna McKahan Maury, that he "wasn't sleeping well" and was going downstairs "to read the newspapers."

A native of this city, Mr. Mary was educated in District public schools and had been in the real estate business here many years. He was president of the Washington Real Estate Board in 1926 and 1927.

Surviving are his widow, his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Burlingham; three sons, John F Maury, jr.; Richard Fontaine Maury, and Dean Maury; a daughter, Mrs. Percy McCoy; two sisters, Mrs. Leon Frazier, New York, whose husband is president of the First National Bank in New York, and Mrs. Sam Morse of California, and three grandchildren.

Maury Funeral Here Tomorrow

Rites for Realtor Will Be Followed by Private Interment

Funeral services for John F. Maury, 52-year-old Capital realtor, who was found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning yesterday in the garage of his Chevy Chase (Md.) home, will be held at 11 a.m. tomorrow at Gawler's chapel, 1750 Pennsylvania avenue N.W. Interment is to be private.

Mr. Maury was a grandson of the late Matthew Fountaine Maury, famous as a geographer and for his work as head of the Hydrographical Board in publishing "Wind and Current Charts" and "Sailing Charts." The two charts, shortening ocean voyages, saved steamship lines millions of dollars annually.

The realtor was a descendant of a famous Virginia family of that name, a life member of Congressional Country Club, a member of the University and National Press Clubs and the Beach and Tennis Clubs of Edgemoor, Md.

Honorary pallbearers are Frederick E. Altemus, H. Clifford Bangs, Calvert Bowie, W.K. Bachrach, Dr. W. Foster Burdick, G.S. Burton, Morris Cafritz, Leon Fraser, Robert V. The National Intelligencer, February 3, 1855

On Friday, February 2d, at fifteen minutes before one o'clock p.m., at his residence in this city, in the 46th year of his age, John W. Maury. He closed his earthly career in the meridian of life and in the fruition of every thing that could make life desirable. The ardent devotion of a large and most interesting family; the warm attachment of a very extended circle of friends; the admiration and confidence of a whole community; the recorded honors of high and delicate official trust, and a large fortune, the product of his industry and enterprise, were the rewards that blessed his years.

The life of this most estimable citizen was marked by a career so pure, active, unobtrusive, benevolent, and useful, that friendship, confidence, popularity, and every social tribute gathered around him and stamped him as one of our best and most valued citizens. He had a generous heart to appreciate and treasure up these testimonials, and most unostentatiously did he wear his good eminence. His only ambition seemed to be to make himself useful in his day and generation, and to preserve an unblemished reputation. Our city, in its prosperity and improvement, and the united voice of praise and commendation, bear testimony that he worked out most successfully the end and aim of his ambition.

The deep gloom that now hangs over our city at this sad dispensation is a tribute to his memory, and the profound sympathy that is every where expressed is proffered to his heart-stricken family.

The funeral of Mr. Maury will take place on Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, from his late residence.

Solemn Ceremonies

And yesterday a large proportion of our population and many strangers were in attendance at the funeral of the late Mayor of the city, John W. Maury, Esq. His remains were conveyed to Trinity Church in the afternoon, where the Rev. Dr. Cummings read the impressive funeral services of the Episcopal Church, and delivered an affecting and eloquent discourse; and the church services were closed by a most feeling and impressive prayer from the Rev. Dr. Smith, of the Ninth Street Presbyterian Church.

The church was crowded to overflowing and the streets thronged with sympathizing friends. Judging by the test thus given, it may be safely remarked that the death of no citizen within the last quarter of a century has created so general a feeling of sincere sorrow. Though but forty-six years of age, it was truly said by the pastor that the good man before him had not lived in vain.

A Handsome Testimonial

We have accidentally omitted a notice of the elegant testimonial about to be presented to John W. Maury, Esq., late Mayor of the city, by some of his friends who set a just value upon his official services and estimate truly his excellent qualities as a citizen. It was prepared at the well-known and tasteful jewelry establishment of M.W. Galt & Brother. This service of silver, we learn, consists of two massive, graceful and superb wine pitchers, twelve neatly-wrought gold-lined goblets, and one large and finely-executed salver -- the whole being tastefully embellished with wreaths, engraved in the richest most exquisite, and brilliant style of art, (known as the antique or bright style of engraving,) and producing a combination singularly uniform, beautiful, and substantial. The cost of this magnificent service is about one thousand dollars.

Zeverly, "Old Houses on C Street," Columbia Historical Society, Vol. ??, pp. ??-??

The first house of note (No. 302) dates from 1837 as the home of the late John W. Maury, and it is where he died in February, 1855, at the early age of 46. It continued to be the family home for the remainder of his widow's life, and three of the daughters are still living there.

Mr. Maury became a resident of Washington about 1829 or 1830, his first residence being the house now numbered 325, which originally was a double house two stories in height, with a large front yard. In recent years a portion of it has been used for a small dwelling on the east side, but otherwise it has remained unchanged for more than 70 years.

Mr. Maury's first business occupation was that of a broker. Prior to 1846 he was one of the directors of the Bank of the Metropolis (now National Metropolitan) and upon the death of General Van Ness in that year he became president to the bank and was holding that position when he died. Mr. Maury was one of the representative citizens in those days and was Mayor of the city in 1852 and 1853.

His eldest son, Mr. Wm. A. Maury, the surviving son of the family, who is still a resident of Washington, tells me that he was born in the house above mentioned, where his father had his first home. He has been well known for many years as a prominent member of the bar, and was at one time associated with the late James M. Carlisle, in that profession. Mr. Maury was one of the Assistant Attorneys-General of the U.S. from 1882 to 1893.

A Wedding

Yesterday from noon until four p.m., there was a very large assemblage of carriages on C street, between 4 1/2 and 3d street. The cause was the marriage of Dr. Thomas Maury to Miss "Georgie", the eldest daughter of our well-known, esteemed, and respected fellow-citizen, Mr. George Parker; Dr. M. being the third son of the late ex-Mayor Maury. About two hundred guests were present at the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Dr. Cummins. Many hundreds more attended shortly afterward, until the spacious reception room of Mr. Parker's residence were crowded to overflowing. The bridesmaids were Miss Lizzie Parker, Miss Alice Maury, Miss Sarah Franklin, Miss Smith (a step daughter of Mr. Luke Lea), Miss Abbot, of Georgetown, and Miss Ludlum, of New York; the groomsmen were Mr. John Maury, Doctor Hughes, Dr. Levick, Mr. John Franklin, Mr. Rossiter, and Dr. Trotter.

A long table was visible in one of the apartments decorated with some sixty or seventy valuable presents to the bride from relatives and friends of the two families thus united; costly, rich and rare, as appropriate for such an occasion. Of course, a magnificent entertainment was provided for the entertainment of his guests; for Mr. George D. Parker and his hospitable family are celebrated for the elegance, good taste, and profusion of their generous hospitality.

The happy pair accompanied by the entire bridal party, departed by the evening train for a trip North.
