Fatal Accident
Yesterday afternoon as a large freight train was passing Pennsylvania avenue, near the western side of the Capitol, a boy named Reeves attempted to get on a baggage car, but in the attempt falling under the wheels and the cars passed over him and cut his legs off at the hips. He was at once removed to the residence of his father, Leonard Reeves, living near the bridge on New Jersey avenue, and expired in about three hours. When taken out his limbs were mangled in a horrible manner, the legs holding together only by the skin. Constant apprehensions have been felt that an accident would happen in this locality--the boys quite often jumping on the passing cars to get a ride. It is to be hoped that this sorrowful accident may prove a warning to such

Fatal Accident
Yesterday afternoon, about 4 o'clock, a boy named William Reeves, aged about 16 years, who was engaged in hauling bricks from one of the kilns, was trotting his horse at a lively gait, and turned the corner of 1st and M streets east, when the cart came in contact with a post and was upset, throwing the boy out, and the horse fell upon him, killing him almost instantly. Officer J.E. Arnold had the corpse conveyed to the residence of the parents, on K street, between New Jersey avenue and 1st street east.
