Whalin. On Tuesday, December 4, 1888, Virginia C. Whalin, aged 43 years, after a long and painful illness. Love cannot be quenched by dying, But will stronger, purer grow; Wipe away the tears of parting, Loose the cable, let her go. When so near the Holy City, Even at its pearly gates, While His songs are wafted to her, Would you have her longer wait? O, the joy that fills this hour; O, the happiness she sees; Seek no longer to detain her-- She has gone to join her boy.
